The Development Road

David Lopez

CS110 · Action 11B · Personal record
Exported 11/9/2026, 5:26:06 PM PST

Recorded work, not a grade or submission receipt. Missing entries remain marked. Review personal details before sharing.

Personal GitHub: https://github.com/Magic-Penguin/ANDREW-THE-LEGEND

Before the next challenge.

My name

David Lopez

A question I want to resolve

Is collaborating with a team, of only other people, the best way to approach game development?

Recall. Question. Recalibrate.

What have I completed?

In completing 11A, using Unity game engine, I got all the moving parts to work when following the instructions. Have some very rudimentary foundation of messing around in the game engine to get an understanding of what it does and where it stands in the realm of the internet and development.

My explanation of classes, objects, data and actions

Classes are objects, that contain the large scope. Essentially the base foundation where you put in your functions and variables.
Objects are containers: a variable to store and retrieve.
Data and actions are functional components of the working code. It gives everything a purpose by making variable and data usable and interactable.

My questions, answers and remaining uncertainty

I do not have any questions per se, but after messing around in unity, it becomes unfathomable to grasp the full workload and capabilities needed to make some of these modern games that are/have been released. Must take copious amounts of collaboration from a huge team, diversifying the workload to make things manageable.
Got a quick preview of what the brainstorming/storyboarding process looks like after hours of the last class.

My personal GitHub repository URL

https://github.com/Magic-Penguin/ANDREW-THE-LEGEND

Readiness check

The only thing saved from last class was my own lecture notes and the many whiteboard photos during the game concept brainstorming, in which everything is accessible.

Replace Chapters with Pipelines

Attention First, Chapter 3, pp. 37–41 (132-page edition).

What I understand from this chapter

III. Replace Chapters w/ Pipelines
Changing terminology can create change from something feeling like work or very meticulous, to something that is much more achievable and with direction. Like vectors: magnitude and direction.
The core pipelines are the basis for what should be done to continue the development: Important Information, The Beginning, and Storytelling. Using these pipelines, plus the understanding of the hat principles where you need to approach different situations with different mindsets, and you have created for yourself a sound foundation for whatever it is you're developing.

My opinion and reasons

I agree with the general ADD (Attention-Driven Design) that you must become a fan of the work, for you are its creator and must hold it close to your heart. Its destiny and overall outcome is in your hands, so the creation becomes incredibly mind-numbing if you are not even a fan.

A decision I can apply

For the game, I am a fan, but to simplify the pipeline of Important Information it is crucial to know what is meant to come of the story.

A question or next investigation

A recurring question in the brainstorming process was, what is the point? What will come from completing the story?

Need to know every detail of it, even if it is never revealed to the user.

Design for the Attention Economy

Attention First, Chapter 6, pp. 53–58 (132-page edition).

What I understand from this chapter

VI. Design For the Attention Economy
In these current times, attention spans are at an all time low. Every company and media platform thrives off of capturing the attention of the user. It's what fuels the drive because they can monetize it. Understand the principles of Attention: 5 seconds, 5 minutes, 5 hours, 5 years.
Split attention and its downsides -- Attention Leak and Debt

My opinion and reasons

We are in the worst times of attention spans with this technological wave of advancements. I hate the media platforms and the constant circulation of ads. That is how the money is made for that outlet, others require more than nonsensical scrolling.

A decision I can apply

Every step along the way should build to something, in one form or another. Having tedious work that ends up being rather useless is a good way to lose the attention of users. Though in game development, it seems to having a stronger grasp of attention than that of social media, the user still contain the power at any point to stop playing. Having unbalanced steps or worthless interactions is a surefire way to get them to do that.

A question or next investigation

At the end of every stage of our game, or even in the smallest levels or accomplishments, what does the user gain about the backstory about this anonymous character?
How does it keep them engaged with the story?

Identity and the Creator Loop

Attention First, Chapter 7, pp. 61–69 (132-page edition).

What I understand from this chapter

VII. Identity And The Creator Loop
First-Fan Principle is really highlighted. Knowing the whole story, including the underlying things that are not standardized, but are subject to change and can be altered: beliefs, emotions, experiences. Not every story requires a copy and paste lore for the character, be different, stand out.
There is no success without failure. Perseverance, facing the difficult and unknown, staying true to oneself and the story are ways to maintain a focused and driven pipeline.

My opinion and reasons

Definitely need to face the difficult to understand concepts and even questions about the story. Figuring those out can prove to be very rewarding in that you accomplished a difficult task and therefore became even more of a fan of the story.

A decision I can apply

Really understanding the backstory of this main character could give insight into where the story may lead and end. Slowly revealing that to the user can capture the undivided attention of the user.

A question or next investigation

So what does the beginning of our characters' story look like? And what challenges will they face and the story unfolds (self, environment, foes)?

Designing Your Teams and Tools

Attention First, Chapter 8, pp. 71–74 (132-page edition).

What I understand from this chapter

Not recorded

My opinion and reasons

Not recorded

A decision I can apply

Not recorded

A question or next investigation

Not recorded

The Human Operating System

Attention First, Chapter 11, pp. 93–103 (132-page edition).

What I understand from this chapter

Not recorded

My opinion and reasons

Not recorded

A decision I can apply

Not recorded

A question or next investigation

Not recorded

Bring something to the summit.

The connection across the readings

Not recorded

Evidence I am ready to show

Not recorded

My board in words

Not recorded

Choose where you want to go.

My direction

Not recorded

The mission I want to explore

Not recorded

My pitch

Not recorded

Conversations and decisions

Not recorded

Agree on the work.

Team name / solo mission

Not recorded

Agreed lead / my name if solo

Not recorded

Accepted members and contributions

Not recorded

How the literature strengthens this team

Not recorded

Communication and check-in plan

Not recorded

Team GitHub URL, or Working solo

Not recorded

Make the Attention Accord.

Purpose and smallest playable result

Not recorded

My attention promise

Not recorded

Time and dependency plan

Not recorded

Board explanation and contributors

Not recorded

Translate the mission into code.

My story-to-code map

Not recorded

What I am borrowing and why

Not recorded

Object lifetime and responsibility

Not recorded

Make one moment playable.

What I expect to happen

Not recorded

What I built and where it lives

Not recorded

A difficulty and my response

Not recorded

Test what you are claiming.

My test record

Not recorded

My improvement experiment

Not recorded

Promised versus returned evidence

Not recorded

Return with work you can explain.

My final access and file check

Not recorded

My next decision

Not recorded

Handoff

Commit and push your own project, notes, report, boards and tests. Verify file/image/link access. Include your team GitHub link if teamed. Submit one personal GitHub URL in your own Canvas record.

CS110 Action 11B in Canvas